In the first part author discusses in three chapters the concept of detachment as evidenced by the life and work of St. John of the Cross. In the second part focus is on the Bhagavad Gita.

The concept of detachment is hermeneutically explored and the author explains the role of detachment in Karma, jnana and Bhakti yogas and teaches us about the various aspects of detachment from moral, social, mystical and theological angles.

In the third and final part he deals with the dialogical perspective and concludes by saying John of the Cross challenges Catholics to understand the process of exploring God in other religious persuasions and cultural context.

Saint John of the cross, the doctor of the Church is also known as the mystic of mystics. The Spiritual Cantic, the masterpiece of his writings is depicted in this book through iconographic art. It's the first time that the spiritual teachings of the Father of Carmelites are presented in this artistic form.

The saint himself describes the Spiritual cantic which flowed from the crucible of the sufferings of his personal life in these words: "Who can describe the understanding He gives to the loving souls in whom He dwells? And who can express the experience He imparts to them? Certainly, no one can! Not even they who receive these communications" (prologue 1). However, the commentary given in this book through the icons should be greatly helpful to anyone who desiring a deep spirituality raises his or her soul to the experimental love of the Divine.

In this book, we aim to make "trust" or the doctrine of Therese's "spiritual childhood" the keystone for approaching her theology of love – the path to perfection rediscovered during her spiritual journey.

Four hundred years of presence of Carmelites in India (1619-2019) was, no doubt, a fruitful season for the Church of India and for the Society. Surely it is very difficult to explore all the multiple forms of fruitfulness contained in such a long and eventful period of time. However, to be indifferent to them would be an existential failure to recognize the deep roots serving as the source of the fruitfulness. The biennial meeting of the Indian Carmelite Research Forum (ICRF) in November 2019 took up the theme for its exploration and discussion. The present volume, the fourth of the monograph series, collects some of the results of that meeting such nine authors contributing their views.

In giving us this work of grace, The Charismatic Identity of the Teresian Carmel, Mother Therese shares with us the experience of Carmel. It is one thing to read something and comment on it but it is quite another to read, contemplate, absorb, embrace the wisdom found therein, in this case the wisdom of the great doctor and mystic, St. Teresa of Jesus. Through this labor of love, Mother shares something of her own journey, so personal and sacred and therefore no small gift. By our reading and prayerful reflection may we also taste the depth of St. Teresa's wisdom as found in her charism, so that we too will be "of Jesus".

The Gift of the priestly vocation Rule for priestly formation

Congregation for the Clergy

CIPH

Pp.183; ₹125.00

The formation of priests means following a singular 'journey of discipleship', which begins at Baptism, is perfected through the other sacraments of Christian Initiation, comes to be appreciated as the centre of one's life at the beginning of seminary formation, and continues through the whole of life.

This Ratio Fundamentalis emphasises that formation - both initial and ongoing - must be seen through a unifying lens, which takes account of the four dimensions of formation proposed by Pastores Dabo Vobis. Together, these dimensions give shape and structure to the identity of the seminarian and the priest, and make him capable of that 'gift of self to the Church', which is the essence of pastoral charity.

CIPH

This book seeks to shed new light on the ecclesial dimension of marriage by using a model hitherto employed in the liturgy of marriage. The originality of this work lies in a new vision and explanation of the ecclesial images and symbols found in the Malankara liturgy of marriage, and it explores the roots, basis, origin and development of such ecclesial images. This study particularly concentrates on the biblical, Jewish, patristic and the traditional customary roots of these ecclesial images. The permanent Christ-Church relationship expressed therein is really an exemplar for Christian spouses. In this way, the patristic symbols and images mentioned in the liturgy facilitate a better grasp of its 'liturgical ecclesiology.' Therefore, this work is pertinent for a better understanding of the nature, mission and purpose of the Church.

Mysticism: The Victory of Love

PHILIPCHEMPAKASSERY

519

Pp.160; ₹200.00
ISBN 978-93-91296-39-1

Religion is the word we use for the relationship between God and the believer or devotee. It is the symbolic way in which humans relate themselves with their creator. But in many cases it becomes only a social institution which the average believer becomes part of without any serious involvement or consciousness about it results. Religion is part of the many things which the society approves and encourages as means of a settled and peaceful existence. But today the situation is rapidly changing. What were tolerated in the past are being questioned by the thinking man as useless and even dangerous for his forward march in search of meaning. In this context, the traditional religions with their ritual-oriented practices are being set aside. Today there is a cry for direct relationship with God. The symbolic ways are to be substituted by direct experience of God. It is in this context that mysticism becomes relevant for the modern man. That justifies this study on mysticism.

These philosophers recognise an essence or divine trace in the human structure, where God's Transcendence manifests to abundantly satisfy the human thirst for Truth. Hence, this study proposes that a mystical experience goes beyond a direct and personal God-human relationship to the extent of the highest actualization of human being.
